of communism today set off congressional criticism of recent rulings of the high court. Rep. Howard W. Smith (D-Va) said the 1940 antisubversive law which bears his name is "perfectly clear" in its intent. He suggested there is no use trying to amend the statute so long as the law turns into "whatever the present court interprets it to be.' Sen. Jenner (R-Ind) said he is afraid the court has "put us back 20 years ago" in the legal battle against Communists.

Overturns Convictions Smith and Jenner referred in interviews to Monday's Supreme Court decision overturning, 6-1, Smith Act convictions of 14 California Communists. Five were freed and new trials ordered for the other nine. In a second ruling, the court struck down the contempt of Congress conviction of labor official John T. Watkins. Here too the vote was 6-1, with Justice Clark dissenting in both decisions. Watkins had been convicted of contempt of Congress for refus-

Our Evolving Presidency

Former President Truman in his highly-personal fashion has made an important contribution to popular understanding of the presi-

During his own years in the White House, he spoke frankly many times about the nature of presidential duties, with a view to paving the way for more adequate executive organization.

His contribution in another respect was more accidental than intentional. He brought such political realism to the office while he held it that many Americans understood for the first time its relationship to the two-party system.

Finally, the massive reaction from his unflagging devotion to politics while he occupied the White House brought into clear focus the peculiar position of the chief executive as the symbol of popular government. Mr. Truman knows better than anyone else that the key issue in the 1952 presidential election was whether or not the things he symbolized would be upheld or rejected.

He spoke thoughtfully about the presidency at the University of Missouri the other dayabout the fact it represents leadership of the whole people, although the president as an individual is the leader of a party.

He spoke of the inevitable conflict between the White House and Congress, because Congress represents local interests and the White House represents the national interest.

Harry Truman should write a book about the evolving presidency of the United States. He should ask Herbert Hoover to write a foreword and Dwight Eisenhower to write an epilogue. Perhaps he is writing such a book. If so, this is a request for an autographed copy.

No man of the mid-20th century is better equipped to do for the American presidency what eventually someone must do to put it into mid-20th-century perspective.

Any Hope In Sight?

A study of taxes by Du Pont Co., one of a series of presentations by this important industry of public problems in which it has an important stake, comes to this significant con-

If taxes stay as high as they are and go no higher, the only way to bear them without ruining the production that makes them payable is to change the tax structure.

"To lighten the tax burden significantly," the study states, "the nation's output must be increased, and as rapidly as possible. . . Nations, like men, can carry a burden more easily as their strength increases."

Statistically, the result of expanding the nation's output by 82 per cent above the 1956 level-a distinct possibility by 1975-would be to cut the tax take from its present 25 per cent of production to about 14 per cent.

The problem is to release more of the na tion's creative energies for the production of the wealth on which it draws for the purposes which must be met from taxation.

"Tax requirements must be filled without paralyzing our economic advance or restricting our opportunities," the Du Pont Co. points out. "Only in this way can the United States discharge its responsibilities before the world and fulfill the broad natural aspirations of its people."

Would the tax burden be stabilized if the strength to bear it were increased by tax revision? That is the key question. Du Pont answers it by pointing out that the tax burden will be what the people of the United States want it to be-no more. That is representative democracy, whose admirers and critics have pointed out from its beginning bore within itself the seeds of its own financial destruction.

Flag Day 1958

The sight of the flags displayed this year on Flag Day was a reminder of two things: 1. There is no finer sight in the country than Old Glory, and the flag is not displayed often enough to do it full credit. 2. It still has 48 stars in it.

Ten years ago, the rumor got around that the 48-star flag was about to be seen for the last time. In 1947, the House of Representatives voted to admit Hawaii as a state. Three years later, it voted for both Hawaii and Alaska.

In 1953, the House voted for Hawaii again. A year later, the Senate voted to admit both Hawaii and Alaska.

The sticking point is the fear of southern Democrats that admission of one or both would add enough senators to the antisegregation bloc to break the South's stranglehold on Congress.

Those who were tempted to ticket their flags for the rag-bag in 1947 can congratulate themselves on holding off until they were sure that no change was imminent. In 1957, no change is imminent either. It has been 45 years since New Mexico and Arizona became states-a new record. The previous record was 15 yearsbetween Missouri in 1821 and Arkansas in 1836.

BUT IT MUST ALSO in all fairness be inquired whether any economic influences from back home governed those who voted for the foreign aid program.

Thus there was quite a lot of enthusiasm in Democratic circles emanating from the financial centers of the nation which looked on the 500 million dollar developmental loan fund in the new measure as possibly the foundation for a structure of private investments that could pyramid into a large amount of private business such as is always generated when government money starts the revolvrecord is 65 for to 29 against the ing of dollars in international exchange.

The Democrats as a party still must rely to some extent on some of the big conservative banking and legal talent of the eastern seaboard for their campaign support and contributions.

Hence it may be inferred that the large vote for the program came from elements which rightly foresaw as did many Republicans perhaps a new period of growth in foreign trade and investment along orthodox lines instead of so much on the "give-away" basis.

The program just adopted took many months to formulate and it

IT IS MOST unfortunate that the Democrats have so many "isolationists" now because it causes their leadership to tread a zigwithholding bi-partisan coopera-

This doesn't prevent some of the same Democrats from continuously sniping at the President's handling of foreign affairs though mostly they concentrate their fire on Secretary Dulles when they know that the President makes all the important decisions.

But publicly at least it puts the Democrats on record as breaking down a useful custom in international affairs - sending some senators of both parties at least as consultants if not principals in an international mission.

It seems incredible however that only a few weeks ago many newspapers were reporting from Washington that "foreign aid" was doomed and now the program This may be a mere coincidence sails through the Senate by more

You think you work hard!

A strong man would have to work 228 hours steadily—to do the amount of work which electricity does in one day in the average American home. Just count your appliances!

What does it cost you? Just for fun divide your last month's electric bill by the number of days in the month. See how little you pay each day!

Think of all the jobs electricity does for you. Where could you find a servant who does so much so well and works such long hours for so little?

BE A WIDOW THIS YEAR

because somebody wanted ALL of the road?

Every day, in communities all over America, scores of wives become widows-suddenly-because of traffic accidents that don't have to happen!

Why do these tragedies strike?

Because someone behind the wheel wants all the road?

Because a fool in a car wants to show off his horse-

This year alone, over 40,000 men, women and children will lose their lives on our roads and highways, according to the present accident rate!

Yet most of these deaths can be prevented.

All it needs is your cooperation . . . cooperation that can save your own life, or the life of someone in your

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN HELP STOP TRAFFIC DEATHS NOW

First-Drive safely and courteously yourself. Watch traffic and pedestrians carefully. Observe speed limits and warning-signs. Wherever drivers stay alert and obey the law, deaths go DOWN!

Second-Talk to your neighbors-to your church, PTA, union or lodge groups. Get them to urge your police and courts to enforce the law strictly. In just three months, one state alone reduced traffic deaths 14%, while national rates rose 11%! It was done by automatically suspending licenses—by literally taking the violators off the road! Wherever enforcement is strict, deaths ao DOWN!

Third-Ask for extra policing where needed . . . for better roads, street lighting and signs . . . for safety training in your schools. Wherever the public actively supports a community safety program, deaths go DOWN!

Fourth-Urge your own local safety council to work with state and national groups for uniform traffic laws and enforcement. Your community newspaper, and radio and TV station will be glad to cooperate in promoting over-all safety laws.

Wherever everyone understands the law, deaths go DOWN!

START TODAY! Clip this page—and for free reprints, write your Local Safety Council or "Stop Accidents Campaign," National Safety Council, 425 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago 11, Illinois. Use your reprints to help you recruit your neighbors for a war against traffic deaths. Your local or state safety group will be glad to assist with programs and organization. If you don't know how to reach them, your newspaper or police force will tell you. The important thing is to do something about it. Every day wasted means more lives wasted! And tomorrow, it may be someone you know or love.

YOU CAN AFFORD AN ARCHITECT

Architect's Fee Best Bargain in Building

How much will you save by engaging an architect to plan a new building for your business-or a new home?

The American Institute of Architects says the usual architectural fee for new structures depends on the size and type of the building, and usually ranges from 6 to 12 percent You can afford it ... because the architect saves you money in the course of his job. In fact, the money he saves you usually amounts to more than the fee you pay. For example, when building any new structure, the architect will help you choose a desirable location . . . advise you on realty values . . . help 1/2 BREAST FULL LEG $1.00 | advise you on rearry values . . . help you avoid mistakes that might affect the resale price. He will also advise you on financing-and his counsel may help you get a mortgage loan at a better rate. He will specify the exact materials to be used, invite various contractors to bid on them, and then make sure you get your money's worth. Savings on competitive bids alonebased on the architect's exact drawings and specifications-usually exceed his entire fee.

The architect will supervise the construction from beginning to end to assure that all drawings and specifications are faithfully carried out within the terms of your agreement with the contractors. You get what you buy!

The architect's knowledge of materials, plumbing, heating and air conditioning, lighting, and insulation will assure the lowest possible maintenance and operating costs. Consultation, study, drafting, writing specifications, supervising building, complying with building codes and lien laws, watching expenses . . . when you consider all the services he performs for his fee, it's easy to see why engaging an architect is often a case of "spending to save." The architect's fee will vary, of course, depending on the locality and the amount of service you require. But one thing will remain the same everywhere: the fee will be the only payment the architect will realize for his work—his code of ethics does not permit him to accept discounts or commissions from contractors or suppliers. When you are ready to build, talk over your budget frankly with an architect. He'll welcome the opportunity of helping you get more for your building dollars, and will be happy to show you samples of his work. And he'll draw up an agreement or contract that will state exactly the services he will charge you for, and the terms of payment. If you don't know any architect

A spruce tree raised to maturity under glass could not have produced a dependable mast for a clipper ship. The ship fitters of the "windjammer" days preferred to cut their timber from the highland forests where the young trees developed under the buffeting of cross winds.

Boys are like trees in this respect. When they grow up "under glass," never having to assume responsibilities, they fail to develop the strength of character and ability that come to the boy who earns his own way.

The boy who operates a successful newspaper route is developing the strength to stand against the winds of life, and to grow tall in manhood and good citizenship.

Well, we've seen these new products - in fact, we have them right here in our store — and, frankly, we just could-n't be more completely in agreement that there's a "NEW WORLD" in store for picture makers.

There are two new snapshot cameras — called the Brownie Starflash and Starflex — that make color slides as well as black-and-white and Koda-color snapshots. There's the new Kodak Rotary Flasholder that takes six flash shots on a single loading. There's a beautifully styled new slide projector (the Kodak "300") that's the most compact we've ever seen, yet it shows color slides bigger and brighter than ever. There are two new Medallion Cameras that are the easiest-to-use Kodak has ever built. And there's a new Kodak Showtime Projector that sets a new standard for lux-ury in 8mm movie projection.

VAPOR LOCK

You're driving merrily along at a good highway clip on one of the first warm days of summer. You have to slow down at a traffic jam. Suddenly the car stalls and won't restart.

It's obviously the fuel pump, you say, and sometimes it is. But one of the possible causes people seldom think about is

It's a mysterious thing, and since it's a condition you can't see, vapor lock is a dilemma that's not too well understood. But if you remember about it, you may save yourself the expense of a new fuel pump.

Vapor lock usually happens in the season's first warm days when some service stations haven't received their supply of summer-time gas. The difference is important, for in the winter gasoline is made to vaporize easily for ready starts. In the summertime, that advantage becomes a disadvantage, When you slow down in that traffic jam, the engine heated up a bit and the gasoline in the carburetor, fuel line and pump began to vaporize. But the pump is made to force through liquid gas, not vapor. The engine stops. It looks like a case

If it is vapor lock, it can be cured easily by pouring cold water over the fuel pump and fuel lines to condense the gas.

That's a simple answer to a complicated problem. Only experience can give you the answers, and it's experience that gives a good mechanic the ability to tell when you need repairs -and when you DON'T need repairs. That's just one of the reasons so many owners leave their cars in the careful hands of our service department.
